THE OLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL

While I was reading "10 Things Not to Say During a Hospital Visit" in MAD #470, the only thing I could think about was this funny experience I had last year. My best friend Will and I got paired up to visit a nursing home for a school project. We were both paired with an old lady named Bessie. Anyway, one day while we were talking to her, Will said, "My cat died yesterday." Bessie didn't respond. Then Will blurted, "He just got too old, he just kinda rolled over and died!" Everyone around us was shocked! I literally spewed punch all over the table! Everyone gave us dirty looks on the bus ride back to school!

Tyler McCardle, San Antonio, TX

Ty-lenol — Your letter got a similar response when we read it around the office — awkward and angry silence. Senior Editor Joe Raiola even spewed punch all over his desk. But he does that everyday so it probably had nothing to do with your letter. Tell Bessie we say hi... on second thought maybe you shouldn't say anything more to her! —Ed.

MOTHER IN LAW

Yours is my favorite section of the magazine. I love reading the snappy responses to the goofball letters and how you make fun of people's names. I'm writing for two reasons. I would like to know what you're going to do with my name. Note that I am a lawyer, but don't try "lawless," "at-law" or "law and order" because, frankly, we thought of those ourselves. Secondly, my two sons, who also read your magazine, don't believe that you would possibly publish a letter from their dumb old mom. Please help me prove them wrong! I'm sure there will be some kind of life lesson in it for them (although I'm not sure what yet!)

Nina Law, Long Beach, CA

Shock and Law — Wait, you mean to tell us that you're a lawyer and your last name is "Law"? We're hoping you didn't become a lawyer for that reason alone. Because if that's the way your mind works, count yourself lucky that your name isn't Nina Hooker! As far as teaching your sons a life lesson, it seems they were right and wrong. They were wrong, because we did print your letter. However, in your sons' defense, they were definitely right about their mom being dumb! —Ed.

Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™

I read about your Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™ and decided to write in! Lately, everyone around me is obsessed with High School Musical, even my family (except me)! My sister has the soundtrack and the DVD and my parents love it just as much as her! As if this wasn't bad enough, High School Musical 2 is coming in December. So I'm getting back at everyone by writing to you! My dumb wish is for you to print a spoof, comic or anything that's funny and makes High School Musical look bad!

Jack Lewis, Baltimore, MD

Lucky Lewie — Here at the Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™ yours is our favorite kind of dumb wish — the kind we've already granted and don't have to put any effort into! Check out MAD Kids #5 (on sale now!) — you'll find a page of stupid outtakes from that equally stupid movie. Come to think of it, MAD Kids #4 had the stars of High School Musical on the cover of our fake-out magazine Pus Weekly! If you really want to get back at your sister, you should give her a subscription to MAD Kids! —Ed. P.S. If you have any kind of dumb wish, feel free to send it to us! Snail mail it to: Make A Dumb Wish Foundation™, c/o MAD Magazine, 1700 Broadway, New York, NY 10019 or e-mail us at letters@madmagazine.com and make sure you put "Dumb Wish" in the subject line.

MAD CELEBRITY SNAPS

I was on the film set of a new comedy called Big Ballin' starring Todd Bridges (Willis from Diff'rent Strokes). When I asked Todd if he would pose with a copy of MAD, Todd said "For Celebrity Snaps? Sure." And before I could go to my car to get my issue of MAD, he pulled out two issues of his own! I asked if he reads MAD and he said, "I read all the important periodicals — Newsweek, Sports Illustrated and MAD."

John Sjogren, LaCanada, CA

Papa John — Consider yourself lucky! When we approach celebrities to pose with MAD and they go to their car to get something, they usually return with a tire iron! We're still seeing a little fuzzy after our encounter with Sir Ian McKellen! Congrats on the snap and enjoy your three-year MAD subscription! —Ed.

OFFICE SPACED

I was reading your Letters and Tomatoes department and I was wondering where you write back. Do you write in an office or do you take it home and write your funny answers to people's silly questions?

Eric Campbell, Zion, IL

Saved By The Campbell — We don't ever sit in one place. We like to roam and ponder every nuance of the missive. In your case, we started reading your letter in the study in front of a roaring fire enjoying a frappuccino. We then took a morning stroll through our polo fields whilst further contemplating the nature of your query. Then, as we were nearing the heliport, it came to us — we'll just pass it on to an intern and let him worry about it! Thanks for writing! —Ed.

The Big Easel

Enclosed is a picture of my masterpiece "Vegetable Bitterman." As an art genius, I like to stick to the ROY G BIV format. I used vegetables to render Bitterman in the following way:

Red: Tomato
Orange: Bell Pepper
Yellow: Banana Pepper
Green: Lettuce
Blue: Blueberry
Indigo: Purple Onion
Violet: Cabbage

Please publish this in your magazine so my wife will quit calling my art masterworks "astonishingly stupid!"

Jeff Robertson, Yellow Springs, OH

Jeff Leppard — We thought the stories about spinach and lettuce tainted with E. coli were the most disgusting thing to happen to vegetables. Our mistake! We're guessing there's not a salad bar in the state of Ohio you're welcome at (we hear they posted your picture at the hostess stand in Sizzler with a "Do not serve" warning)! We hope this settles the dispute with your better half. But we have a sneaking suspicion that your "wife" is nothing more than a watermelon with a female face drawn on it! —Ed.

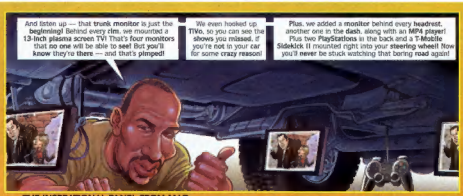
WE'VE OFFICIALLY BEEN PIMPED

On a recent episode of Pimp My Ride, Xzibit and the customizers at GAS put 7-inch monitors in the mud flaps of an '87 Chevy Blazer. X to the Z keenly pointed out, not only how freakin' stupid that idea is, but also the inspiration for that stupidity (namely the "Dump My Ride" parody from MAD #456). In case you missed it (which is easy to do, since MTV so rarely replays its shows), here are the screen captures along with the actual quotes from the show.



And listen up — that trunk monitor is just the beginning! Behind every rim, we mounted a 13-inch plasma screen TV! That's four monitors that no one will be able to see! But you'll know they're there — and that's pimped!
We even hooked up TiVo, so you can see the shows you missed, if you're not in your car for some crazy reason!
Plus, we added a monitor behind every headrest, another one in the dash, along with an MP4 player! Plus two PlayStations in the back and a T-Mobile Sidekick II mounted right into your steering wheel! Now you'll never be stuck watching that boring road again!

AN INTERN FOR THE WORSE

We want to give a big thank you to our 2006 interns! On the editorial side, Kiernan P. Schmitt, Chari Pere, Nicholas Michael Ferry IV and Harrison Greenbaum. And in the art department, Ashley Edwards and Timothy Yee. We couldn't have gotten our dry cleaning without you!

Are you a college student who thinks you have the goods to temporarily do our jobs for us? Write to us for information on how to become a 2007 summer intern. E-mail us at letters@madmagazine.com and be sure to put "editorial intern" or "art intern" in the subject line. Don't have a computer? For editorial, write Amy Vozeolas c/o MAD Magazine, 1700 Broadway, New York, NY 10019. For art, send it to Ryan Flanders at the same address.

BITTERMAN

Christmas shopping really blows.
Yeah, but it's all part of the holiday.
What are you talking about? Shopping is the complete opposite of what the holiday's supposed to be! It's hordes of greedy consumers frantically buying gifts for their brat kids who already have too much stuff anyway!
Look at this game Nick wants. Fifty bucks for a digital fantasy about stealing cars, beating up hookers and running from the cops. It's a game that glorifies crime – where's the holiday spirit in that? But if I don't get it for him, somehow I'm the bad guy! That's total B.S.!
You actually have a point...
I say we take a stand and bring back the true meaning of Christmas! Let's stick it to Nintendo and Mattel and all the other companies that have made Christmas all about spending! This year, they won't get one cent of our money!
Ok – I'm with ya, Joe. What can I do?
Stuff this in your jacket.

1 The Iraq War Mish-mosh Accomplished

For four years the Bush war mantra was to "stay the course" in Iraq. Now, with roughly 3,000 Americans dead and tens of thousands injured, the new Bush war mantra is "we won't leave short of victory." But our delusional Commander-in-Chief can't tell us what victory is and how we achieve it. So American G.I.s slog onward, like pawns in some never-ending sick game. That the War in Iraq is the dumbest thing of the year is painfully obvious. The only question remaining is whether or not it proves to be the dumbest thing of the century.

THE IRAQI QUAGMIRE CHESS SET

From the makers of THE 'NAM CHESS SET!

Now you can experience the bumbling American mission in Iraq, but without the constant hassle of having to pick hot shrapnel out of your ass. With the Quagmire Chess™ set you'll feel like you're in the middle of all the unpredictable action from the comfort of your living room! And you can do what the Pentagon never has: apply and implement a strategy to win the war! But it won't be easy! By combining the rules of traditional chess with the anarchy of the Sunni Triangle, Quagmire Chess™ replicates "Bush's Blunder" with amazing (and frustrating!) accuracy.

The Battlefield

Unlike conventional chess boards, the Quagmire Chess™ board is actually shaped like Iraq, giving a nearly insurmountable advantage to the Iraqi player who is familiar with the "terrain." Further hindering the American side is that conventional chess strategies don't work in this game. In fact, most American players will soon realize that the game itself makes no sense.

HAND-CRAFTED QUALITY!

The Fighters

Quagmire Chess™ pits a undermanned battalion of exhausted, homesick Americans, some on their third or fourth tour of duty, against a ragtag army of furious Sunni militants and rabid foreign jihadists. (Fun!) Play the Iraqi side and you're a "winner" as long as the fight rages on. In fact, a mere stalemate is a major victory! Play the American side, however, and "winning" — since it's not clearly defined in the rules — is impossible. It's a debilitating battle with no clear objective or end in sight. That's why it's called Quagmire Chess™!

Pentagon (American Rook)
Hilary Clinton (American Knight)
Donald Rumsfeld (American Bishop)
condoleezza Rice (American Queen)
George W. Bush (American King)
Dick Cheney (American Bishop)
Joseph Lieberman (American Knight)

The Rules

U.S. troops must fan out from the relative safety of Baghdad's "Green Zone" into a vast, unconquerable desert that's teeming with insurgents hell-bent on forcing the American military completely off the board. Just like in the real war, this is no fair fight! Should an American capture a suicide bomber before he strikes, he'll be replaced by two more desperate fanatics ready to blow themselves and everyone around them to smithereens. "Staying the course" has never felt so counter-productive!

OUR GUARANTEE

With Quagmire Chess™ "the violent [illegible] throes" [illegible] on forever. And pretty soon the American [illegible] will throw [illegible] his hands in d[illegible]pair, realize [illegible] probably shouldn[illegible] the first [illegible]

THE IRAQI QUAGMIRE CHESS SET

Yes, I want to invest my money, time and energy in a quagmire! Send me the limited edition, hand-crafted Quagmire Chess™ set! I understand that the game will go on far longer than I want it to and that I'll soon come to believe that the price I've paid is too high.

2 Bode Miller at the Olympics It's All Downhill from Beer

The drinking, the dancing, the late night partying…all well-deserved perks after winning an Olympic medal. The only problem is, Bode Miller did this BEFORE winning any medals. The skiing prima-dumma, ranked #1 in the world in 2005, was expected to win multiple medals at February's winter games, but apparently couldn't resist the dual temptations of elbow-rubbing with the Latvian Women's Curling team and drinking his weight in beer. Failing to live up to all the media hype (and an entire Nike ad campaign built around him), in the end, Bode brought only disgrace and embarrassment to the U.S. Ski team. Should Bode be Sports Illustrated's Sportsman of the Year? More likely he'll be honored by a different type of magazine.

3 The Cheney Hunting Accident Shoot Happens

The Vice President had planned on a pleasant day quail hunting with his friend, 78-year-old GOP fat cat Harry Whittington. But a matter of hours, the whole thing had blown up in his face... Whittington's face, really since he was the one who Cheney blasted in the face, neck and chest with birdshot. Even dumber than confusing a small terrestrial bird with a septuagenarian Texan, however, was the Veep's handling the unfortunate event, where he seemed more concerned about his own reputation, than his hospitalized "friend." Still, we can't help thinking if Cheney hadn't dodged the draft twice when he was younger, maybe he'd know how to handle a gun better.

Richard Hatch Vs. the I.R.S. Debt Man Walking

Behold Richard Hatch, the portly, gay egotist who liked to cavort around naked during the first season of the TV show Survivor. His underhanded shenanigans allowed him to capture the first prize of $1 million. Only one problem, Hatch never bothered to pay taxes on the prize money. He might be able to Outwit, Outplay and Outlast his fellow contestants, but not the I.R.S.! Richard (May we call you Dick?), the tribe has spoken. It's time for you to go — to prison.

5 Zinedine Zidane A Butthead's Headbutt

Unless you're a rabid fan of soccer (the most popular sport in America after underwater tennis), you'd probably never heard of Zinedine Zidane until his infamous head-butting of an Italian player at this year's World Cup. Zidane's outburst, which got him ejected from the game and cost France the championship, was in response to the Italian player calling him "the son of a terrorist whore." Oooh, snap! Zidane crushes the dreams of millions of French soccer fans because of a "Yo mama" joke! Hey Zinedine, next time, before you use your head, use your head!

6 Ann Coulter Queen of the Vile

Here's a riddle: Why does smear-merchant Ann Coulter have such skinny legs? Answer: So she can easily crawl out from under the slimy rock where she lives. This year the shamelessly self-promoting Coulter decided that the grieving 9-11 widows needed to be taken down a peg. (Guess someone else was doing kids with cancer.) In her morally bankrupt book Godless, Coulter unleashes a tsunami of hate towards the widows, saying "these harpies" are enjoying their husbands' deaths and they should "hurry up and appear in Playboy." Sadly, this kind of despicable ranting is exactly what we've come to expect from Coulter, the poster girl for the right wing's dark side.

SHE WAS ONLY ONE WOMAN, BUT HER VILE AND TWISTED WRITINGS OFFENDED AN ENTIRE NATION!

7 Mel Gibson The Passion of the Anti-Semite

We don't know about you, but when a cop pulls us over for erratic driving, the first thing we do is roll down the car window, throw a hundred dollar bill on the ground and say, "Excuse me, officer, is that yours?" Maybe Mel Gibson didn't have a hundred dollar bill on him the day he was pulled over, having blown all his money on tequila shots just minutes earlier. Instead, the Hollywood star launched into a long anti-Jewish rant. Despite Mel's insistence that he's no anti-semite, his behavior reminded us of an old Latin saying, "in vino veritas" — "in wine there is truth." It also reminded us of an old German saying — "Heil Hitler!"

8 Tainted Spinach // Ain't Easy Being Green

After Swiss chard, kale, collards, escarole, arugula, watercress, chicory, dandelion and bok choy, spinach is by far our favorite leafy green. So we were extremely upset when a nationwide E. coli outbreak linked to the vegetable actually killed someone and hospitalized about 100 others. The problem was traced to a California company called Natural Selection Foods (E. coli is "natural," right?), which quickly pledged to cooperate with the FDA to identify the source of the problem — irrigation water contaminated with livestock feces (also "natural"). The big problem now is what to do with all that tainted spinach, so look for a special promotion in your local newspaper soon.

9 YouTube A Streaming Pile of Sh*t

What a year it was for YouTube, the monumentally distracting website that wastes your time with fat-guy dance routines, nut-crunching skating accidents, and seconds-long TV clips that weren't funny the first time around. In October, the site's founders sold their crapucopia to Google for a cool $1.65 billion — making it the first time all year that anyone had gotten anything worthwhile out of YouTube.

Bedroom Boredom
01:33 (Feels like 33:10)
You might wonder how a hot chick like me could possibly be so "lonely," especially after watching my thrilling monologues about egg salad, toilet water, or the Holy Roman Empire. Ah, who am I kidding? I've been outed! Everything I say has actually been scripted by two wannabe screenwriters. Geez, you'd think if they were going to feed me lines they'd make them more interesting.

I Act Like an Imbecile, Day 7
03:48
For the seventh straight day, I'm posting my lame, self-conscious "antics" on this site. My hope is that by dancing like a horny chimp, mooning the webcam, and singing about Nilla Wafers, I'll be able to gain a nanosecond's "fame" in the fast-growing field of dimwit YouTube pseudocelebrities. Wish me luck!

International Retard
03:21
Most people travel the world to broaden their horizons, experience other cultures, or see famous sights in person. Me? I do it so that I can dance a horrible little white-boy jig in each country! But of course, that's not all that I did on my travels—in places like Haiti, Kenya, and Thailand, I also did plenty of running from roving teen gangs who wanted to "kill the stupid American!"

Watch Frankie Fracture his Skull
00:11
This is my buddy Frankie doin' "gymnastics" after a long morning of bong hits, Jäger shots and Pabst Blue Ribbon. Unfortunately, this "routine" landed him in the County General Trauma Center...but, damn, if it ain't funny! And when he's done with physical therapy in a few months, I'm sure he'll agree!

The REAL Lazy Sunday!!! See it here FIRST!!!
02:22
This is that SNL sketch! You know, where they're all, like, lazy? And it's Sunday? When I saw it, I was, like, man, I've got to post this—'cause if I don't, who will? Even though I later found that the answer was "3,446 other people," mine is definitely the best! Check it out!

10 Floyd Landis Pedaling Dope

Poor Floyd Landis — it can't be easy filling Lance Armstrong's snug spandex shorts. After all, the guy won the Tour de France six freakin' times in a row — and with only one "mad" So this year, when Landis actually won, " seemed like he was picking up right where Lance left off... until he tested positive for illegal performance-enhancing drugs. Now his title is being protested and he may be banned from the sport for two years. After pulling a stunt like that, it looks like Landis was the one who was half nuts.

11 North Korea Tests the Bomb

The Nutty Aggressor

Our knowledge of the Korean War is pretty much limited to *M*A*S*H* reruns, but it's more than enough for us to know the last thing the world needs is another Korean War. Unfortunately, North Korean dictator/wackjob Kim Jong Il apparently doesn't share that sentiment. While his people are starving to death, "Lil' Kim" is spending his country's meager financial resources on developing a nuclear bomb. Now there's a new arms race brewing in the region and the rising likelihood that the midget dictator will sell WMDs to terrorists. Yeaks! If this is our last MAD 20, it's been fun.

12 The Muhammad Cartoon Controversy A Real Laugh Riot

When a Danish newspaper printed a dozen cartoons of the Muslim Prophet Muhammad, they had no idea what they were unleashing. Muslim extremists around the world reacted by rioting, vandalizing, burning and killing. We're going to pass on making the point about how whenever someone says Muslim extremists are intolerant and violent, they protest with intolerance and violence, (The Pope already tried that little maneuver and we know how that went!) Instead, we'll just let the footage speak for itself.

What do you get when you combine a handful of OUTRAGEOUS Danish cartoons with the EXTREME followers of a religion who like it wild?

Barry Bonds, Home Run King The Sultan of Squat

With the publication this year of Games Of Shadows, the evidence that Barry Bonds used steroids has become so overwhelming, that he's the only person in the country with less credibility than John Mark Karr (see #18). While laughably continuing to maintain his innocence as he closes in on Hank Aaron's home run record, it's obvious to the whole world that Barry's slugging stats are inflated, though not as inflated as his obnoxiously bloated ego.

14 Isaac Hayes Quits South Park L. Ron Hubbub

Incredibly enough, last year Tom Cruise wasn't Hollywood's dumbest Scientologist — that dubious distinction went to Isaac Hayes. After spending nearly a decade pitching in to anger Jews, bait Muslims and kill off Jesus himself, Hayes quit South Park after Matt Stone and Trey Parker dared to make fun of his religion. Hypocritical? Absolutely! Idiotic? Yep. Professional suicide? Maybe not — with the publicity from his walkout and his years of experience as Chef, he shouldn't have a problem launching a new career in the food business.

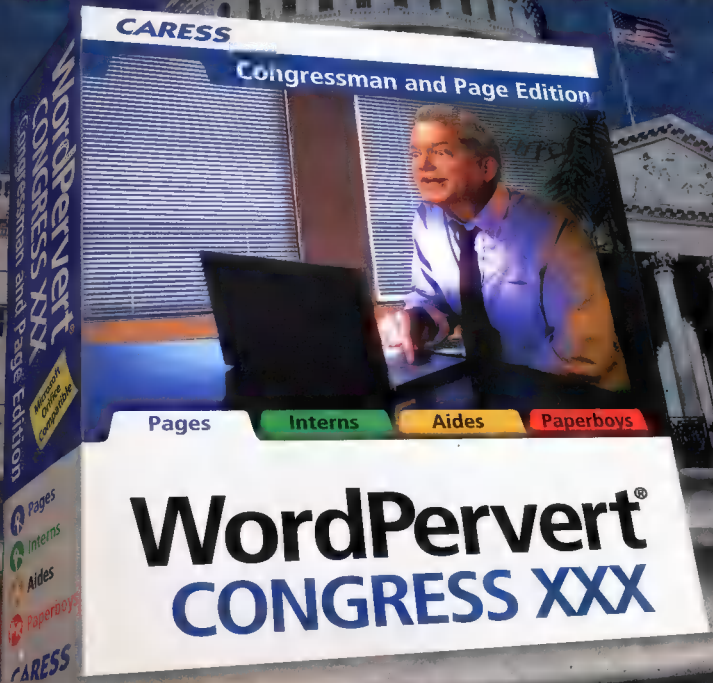
16 Congressman Mark Foley The Louse of Representatives

Not every dumb political thing this year had to do with W... Mark Foley, a six-term GOP Congressman from Florida, resigned in disgrace after uncovered emails and instant messages revealed that his most frequent activity in the Congressional Cloakroom was hitting on underaged male pages (something Republican House leaders had known about and covered up for years). Ironically, Foley had sponsored legislation protecting children from sexual predators, apparently under the mistaken notion that if you sponsor a law, you're exempt from it. ... was even reported that Foley left the floor of the House during a vote in order to send erotic text messages to a young page. The solution to this travesty is clear: congressmen chicken hawks like Foley need ... new software application to better manage their deviant multi-tasking.

The most child-friendly software on the market.



WordPervert XXX has all that you need for smoother communication. One-handed operation system ensures ease of use. Cyber while on the job. Defend family values while downloading hot teen erotica. Write child protection legislation while emailing in a silk thong. 17 Paris Hilton's Vow of Celibacy Just Say Ho

Certain people are known for doing certain things: The Pope talks about religion. Johnny Knoxville gets smacked in the 'nads. And Paris Hilton sleeps with...well, just about anyone — perhaps, for all we know, even the Pope and Johnny Knoxville! Within weeks of the horny hotel heiress telling the world, "I'm not having sex for a year — I'll kiss, but nothing else," she kissed her "promise" good-bye and was seen sneaking into a hotel with Blink 182 drummer Travis Barker. Hey, Paris: When it comes to celibacy pledges, if you can't keep your legs shut, keep your mouth shut!

18 John Mark Karr's Extradition Fake on a Plane

With the notable exceptions of Michael Jackson, Clay Aiken and Clint Howard, has there ever been anyone creepier than John Mark Karr? The self-confessed "murderer" of JonBenet Ramsey, Karr was a cable news darling for about 72 hours before being exposed as nothing more than a lying little weirdo. Treated more like a rock star than a potential pedophile murderer, Karr flew (in pampered Business Class and on the Colorado taxpayers' dime) from Asia to the United States and in doing so, probably created a new business model.

19 Star Jones Gets Sacked The View to a Kill

There are many theories why Star Jones got fired from The View. Maybe it was because Rosie O'Donnell was joining the cast, and the two of them don't get along. Or maybe it was because she shilled for companies on the show in exchange for them sponsoring her wedding. Or maybe, just maybe, it's because she's a self-important blowhard who, now more than ever, looks like E.T. in drag. Still, The View did the right thing and let her say it was her decision to leave, so she could depart with dignity. But Star and dignity are like oil and water — and soon she was bitching to anybody in earshot about how she was fired. Not that it matters what version of the story is true — they all have the same happy ending.

IN OUR LAST EPISODE:
MEN, WHO WOULD LIKE TO JOIN ME THIS WEEKEND FOR GUNS, GUTS AND GUYS?
WELL, I AM SUPPOSED TO SIPHON THE SEPTIC TANK...

Stay the course, it's...

MONROE and... The Army Part 2

I REMEMBER MY FIRST DAY. SHIPPING OUT TO ITALY, THEN FRANCE AND THE SOUTH PACIFIC. AHHHH... SO WHERE ARE YOU HEADING?
WE MAKE CAMP IN THE PARKING LOT BEHIND THIS TIRE SHOP.

SORRY, IT'S THE PLASTIC HAIR. I'M HERE TO LET KIDS KNOW HOW COOL THE ARMY CAN BE.
YOU KINDA LOST YOUR COOL WHEN I WAS SIX.
UNFORTUNATELY, WE'RE NOT ALLOWED TO TARGET CUTIES THAT YOUNG. YET!

WRITER: ANTHONY BARBIERI
ARTIST: TOM FOWLER

THIS MIGHT NOT HAVE BEEN A GOOD IDEA, WALTER.
WELL, FIRST THERE'S G.I. SMOKE OVER THERE...
WHY NOT?
ATTENTION, MAGGOTS!!!
AND THEN THERE'S THAT.
AT EASE! LADIES, THIS WEEKEND YOU WILL GET A TRUE TASTE OF THE MILITARY.
YUMMERS.
SON, YOU JUST EARNED YOURSELF A TRIP TO HEAD-SHAVE TOWN.
UNBELIEVABLE. THE ONE TIME HE'S ABLE TO WRITE HIS NAME LEGIBLY.
GOOD ONE, MONROE. I MEAN, UH OH.
THAT'S GONNA COST YOU, PRIVATE.
NOW DROP AND GIVE ME TWENTY!
PUSH-UPS?
NO, DOLLARS! I'M GOING TO THE OFFICER'S CLUB FOR LUNCH.
OFFICER'S CLUB? IT'S AN APPLEBEE'S!
THE PUSH-UPS WERE A NICE IDEA TOO, MONROE. EVERYONE, HIT THE DIRT!
TELL ME WHY WE'RE DOING THIS AGAIN?
VERY GOOD. NOBODY LIKES AN OBESE SOLDIER. NOW IT'S TIME TO REALLY GET BUSY ARMY-STYLE...
GIDDYUP!
PUFF PUFF WHEEEEEZE. PUFF PUFF.
AAAHHHH!!!

DOUBLE YUMMERS.
WATCH OUT, SARGE. THIS ONE LOVES THE DISCIPLINE.
MAKE IT A TWO-FER.
WHOA.
I KNOW. WAR IS HELL. ISN'T IT GREAT?
YOU BET IT IS, MARV. NOW I'M GONNA LEAVE YOU WITH YOUR SQUAD LEADER, COMMANDANT DYLAN.
DYLAN? NO WAY!
YUP. HE SIGNED UP FOR IT FIRST.
I'M DOING IT FOR MY COLLEGE RESUME. R.O.T.C. WOULD BE A GREAT PLACE TO MEET NEW PEOPLE.
I'LL SEE YOU IN HELL IF YOU DON'T KEEP PUMPING THOSE LIMP NOODLE ARMS!
PLUS, THE PHYSICAL ABUSE IS KIND OF A TURN-ON. WHY ARE YOU DOING THIS, MONROE?
WHAT THE HELL. A WEEKEND AWAY FROM THE FOLKS IS A WEEKEND AWAY FROM THE FOLKS.
WOW. SO THE ARMY IS BETTER THAN YOUR REAL LIFE?
TONIGHT IS GRAMPA'S BATH AND SCAB DRESSIN' NIGHT.
GOTCHA.
BOOM
WAIT A SECOND. WHY ARE WE MOPPING UP THE BATHROOM?
WE GOT ASSIGNED THE LATRINES.
YEAH, BUT WHY IN THE PIC n' SAVE?
ALL RIGHT, MEN. TIME TO HUNKER DOWN.
I CAN'T MOVE AND THIS STREETLIGHT IS SHINING RIGHT ON MY TENT.
WELL, BUNK UP WITH PORKY THERE.
I LOVE THE IDEA, DON'T NEED THE COMMENTARY.

I HAVE ONE QUESTION, WALTER: WHAT THE HELL ARE WE DOING HERE?
MONROE, Shhh.
SERIOUSLY, I THINK ABOUT IT. WHAT'S KEEPING US HERE? I'LL TELL YOU WHAT! NOTHING! SCREW IT, I'M OUTTA HERE!
YOU DON'T WANT TO GO AWOL!
WHAT ARE YOU TALKING ABOUT? THIS IS A MINI MALL, NOT WAR.
DON'T DO IT. YOU DON'T WANT TO GET COURT-MARTIALED!!!
OH. WHAT ARE THEY GONNA DO? LOCK ME UP IN THE LITTLE CAESAR'S OVER THERE?
NO, THEY'LL... LITTLE CAESAR'S?
THAT'S RIGHT... WE NEVER ATE TODAY. DID WE, WALTER?
YOU TAKE OUT THE GUARD TOWER, I'LL CUT THE ELECTRIC FENCE.
ELECTRIC FENCE? MAN, YOU DO HAVE LOW BLOOD SUGAR.
OKAY! YES, IT'S TRUE. I CAN'T LEGALLY KEEP YOU HERE. BUT I ASK YOU TO DO IT FOR YOUR COUNTRY.
DUDE, CAN'T YOU JUST LET US ENJOY SOME OF OUR CRAPPY LIVES?
...BEFORE A BROKEN ECONOMY AND ENDLESS WARS OVERSEAS FORCE US TO JOIN UP FOR REAL?
FINE. YOU FORCED ME TO DO THIS, DYLAN! STOP THEM!
SCREW THAT NOISE! PIZZA PIZZA! LET'S GO, GUYS. YOU'RE BUYING.
FINE.
YOU'LL BE BACK!
YUP. WE FIGURED OUT THE ONE THING THE MILITARY CAN'T... AN EXIT STRATEGY!
WOW! WE ACTUALLY GOT OUT OF THE ARMY!
